

SWISSPORT IS NOT LISTENING TO ITS WORKERS

Your TWU delegate-lead bargaining team met for a second time with Swissport management on Thursday. It is clear that Swissport is not listening to the concerns of hundreds of staff, but instead, they want to shove through a shoddy agreement.

Repeatedly, management commented that the current agreement is working fine and changes are not necessary. This is despite hundreds of surveys where workers have set out simple changes that would make a real difference to job security, retention, work-life balance and financial strain. The current agreement does not work.

To date, they have still not made a counterclaim to our pay proposal and have rejected almost all other claim items. Swissport management has underestimated the feeling of its workforce. It is clear that the overwhelming majority of workers want basic improvements to:

- Part-time conditions
- Access to overtime
- Pay rates
- Penalty rates
- Full-time employment opportunities
- A voice and representation on site.

If management insists on pushing ahead with a substandard agreement, the workforce will have the choice to vote 'NO' to that agreement and make Swissport provide a better proposal.

HOW DOES A VOTE WORK?

- ▶ For an agreement to be approved by the Fair Work Commission, it must first be 'voted up' by a majority of workers. You have just as much say as management does in what your final deal looks like. Every week across Australia agreements are voted down by workers, forcing employers back to the bargaining table to come up with a fairer proposal.
- ▶ Whether workers are looking to stay at Swissport for the long term, or just for now, you deserve a fair deal that is keeping up with the rest of the industry.
- ▶ If you are concerned with Swissport's position, talk to your workmates and let them know that they have the power to vote down a shoddy agreement.
